

LEADERS LOOKING FOR BIG SHUFFLE BY GERMAN CHIEF

No Announcement of Plans Yet by Chancellor Stresemann But Believed Many Ministries Will be Changed—Some Believe Only Constitutional Dictatorship Will Avail

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Oct. 4.—While the chancellor has not yet given the slightest indication of his plans, the political leaders are looking for a general shuffle in a dozen or more ministries, each of which has heretofore been represented by an individual member of the cabinet. The ministries of finance, economics, food and labor may be placed under one minister. The ministries of defense and interior are slated for amalgamation, while purely technical governmental departments such as posts, telegraphs and railways will continue under the supervision of their technical department heads.

Experts in constitutional law who ventured to discuss the parliamentary situation growing out of the retirement of Chancellor Stresemann's coalition cabinet because of the Socialists' refusal to approve the "authorization law," believe the only alternative left to President Ebert is recourse allowed him by Paragraph 48 of the constitution.

Whether they have deferred their retirements because of President Harding's death until President Coolidge should feel that they could be spared was not disclosed. In both cases there have been intimations however that the ambassadors were finding their positions unduly burdensome in a financial way and that they felt they must give attention to their personal affairs.

When Ambassador Harvey was last in the United States on a somewhat prolonged leave it was reported that he would resign and take an active part in the coming presidential campaign.

There was no official word available tonight as to successors President Coolidge might send to fill the posts. At the state department it was not admitted that any steps had yet been taken to sound out the two governments as to suitability of possible appointees.

Both of the retiring ambassadors played important parts in the campaign which resulted in the election of President Harding and since entering upon their diplomatic duties they have been prominent figures in negotiations having to do with postwar developments.

Medals were conferred upon the two retiring ambassadors. While it is too early to predict what the imperial conference will decide when the question comes up, it is stated that some of the overseas premiers, notably those of Canada and Australia, favor the British government's accommodating itself to the views of the United States wherever no conflict with existing laws and regulations governing traffic on the seas is involved.

Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, is understood to have been much impressed of late with the strong editorial expressions which have appeared in a portion of the British press urging that something ought to be done by Great Britain to remove the obnoxious practice of clandestine shipping alcohol to the United States which is giving so much offense to the American government.

ENGLISH CHANNEL HIT BY HURRICANE

(By The Associated Press)
PARIS, Oct. 4.—North to northwesterly gales at times developing into a hurricane have been raging during the past thirty six hours, causing the loss of many lives and stranding the French shores on the English channel and Atlantic seaboard with wreckage. The storm shows signs of abating tonight.

The steamships Majestic, Minnedosa and Empress of Britain were hoisted outside the Cherbourg roads for twenty to twenty four hours, but succeeded in entering port late this afternoon and cleared before evening.

ROBBERS CAPTURED

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 4.—Ed Lockhart, notorious bank robber and escaped convict from Oklahoma, has been captured at Kansas, Delaware county, Okla., according to information received here tonight.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND

Casper, Wyo., Oct. 4.—The body of Nicholas Schmetz, of Douglas, Wyo., fourteenth victim of the Burlington wreck in Cagle Creek, was dug out of the smoking car in the sand of the creek bed this afternoon.

MARRIED IN NEW YORK

OKLAHOMA IS TAKING STOCK OF SITUATION

Citizens Turn to Business While Politicians Wrangle

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 4.—The mad rush of the last few days momentarily stopped, Oklahoma tonight took stock of her position and conjectured as to the future. With the court battle between Governor J. C. Walton and members of the Oklahoma house of representatives halted until next Tuesday, citizens whose attention has been fastened on the spectacular contest between the executive and legislative branches of the state government started to attend to matters that had been forced into the background and realized that martial law under which they have lived for nearly three weeks has become military rule virtually in name only.

In Oklahoma City, the military court that was convened to deluge into alleged lawlessness of the Ku Klux Klan, not only has been dissolved, but the grip of the military has been removed from the city in every respect.

Likewise in Tulsa, the sole remaining activity of the military is in the court of inquiry. Military Rule Over Altho Governor Walton declined today to reveal his plans following the situation inclined to the belief that the military regime rapidly is drawing to a close.

Pointing to the executive's statement last night referring to the election which he has called for December 6 to re-submit a constitutional amendment empowering the legislature to convene at its own call as an impeachment body, in which he declared that in the next two months, will be fought the most historic political battle in history, observers tonight prophesied that the entire removal of martial law would be one of the governor's first moves to increase his political strength.

No Mob Violence

Governor Walton himself gave basis for this conjecture when he declared that no cases of mob violence in the state had been reported for two weeks, indicating, he believed, the situation well in hand.

Today, Aldrich Blake, the executive councillor, announced that plans already are underway to enroll Walton supporters and anti-Ku Klux Klan voters in a definite organization.

LOWDEN COMING TO ESSINGTON SUPPORT

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Praising the record of State Senator Thurston C. Essington, former Governor Frank O. Lowden in a statement tonight announced that he would support Senator Essington for the Republican nomination for governor.

Senator Essington was chosen as the anti-Small candidate at a meeting here this week of representatives of six potential candidates who selected him by a process of self elimination. This was described by former Governor Lowden as a "patriotic act which should insure success in the April primary."

90% OF RAILWAYS EARN TOTAL OF $98,381,200

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Class one railroads which operate ninety percent of the country's rail mileage earned during August the bureau of railway economics announced today a total of $98,381,200. This compared with $51,475,400 earned during the same month last year, and represented an annual return rate of 4.94 percent on the tentative value of property used by the 193 roads concerned. Total revenues of the railroads during the month amounted to $561,456,700, while total operating expenses were $424,751,400. Taxes, rentals and other unstated charges had to be taken from the revenue total in addition to operating expenses before determining the earnings.

STOCK EXCHANGE SEATS BRING HIGH PRICES

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Eugene Meyer, Jr. managing director of the war finance corporation at Washington, has disposed of his seat on the New York Stock Exchange, it became known today when his membership was transferred to Charles J. Culter. The seat was sold for $75,000. Another seat was exchanged today for $82,000.

FAMOUS STATESMAN OF ENGLAND ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—David Lloyd George, the last of the great war premiers to fall will set his foot on American soil tomorrow for the first time. Free from the burden of carrying on the British government the former prime minister comes to discover America anew and to impart his views from the platform to the American people. He is the second foreign member of the "Big Four" of Versailles—Wilson, Clemenceau and Orlando, were the other three—to come to this country.

Mr. Lloyd George, his wife and the ex-premier's inseparable companion, his daughter, Megan, and a half dozen secretaries are passengers aboard the Cunarder Mauretania, due at quarantine at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning after a voyage which began last Saturday at Southampton.

Heading reports that advocates of the Irish Republic which he provoked from coming into being, plan to heckle the British statesman, police headquarters tonight ordered special precautions to prevent embarrassment to the distinguished visitor.

At quarantine Mr. Lloyd George will be met by the official reception committee of which Chauncey M. DePew is chairman.

Mr. Lloyd George will be the honor guest at a luncheon given by the United Press associations at which 150 newspapermen will be present. Saturday morning he goes to Montreal on the first leg of his long journey about the United States and Canada. Twenty British overseas veterans will form his guard of honor while he is in the city.

ST. LOUIS FLYING FIELD PRESENTED TO ALL BRANCHES

Endurance and Daring Airman Thrill Thousands

(By The Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 4.—Under a brilliant, almost cloudless sky, army, navy and civilian flyers, displaying remarkable fighting spirit, endurance and daring airmanship, today flew their airplanes in the three events which marked the opening of the International Air Races here. All events were replete with thrills and the 45,000 spectators were on their toes continually.

No records were broken and the speed made by the planes was about equal to that made at the Detroit meet last year. In the morning the 489 acre St. Louis flying field, 14 miles northwest of here, was formally presented to the army, navy, postoffice department and civilian flyers.

Divisions Represented

Major General Mason M. Patrick represented the army, commander Marc A. Micher, the navy and Second Assistant Postmaster General Paul Henderson the postoffice department.

The first race, the St. Louis flying club trophy, 150 kilometers (93.21) miles was won by Walter Lees, Philadelphia in a Hartzel FC-1 plane with a ninety horse power motor. His average speed was 83.1 miles an hour.

The Mitchell Trophy race the second event was won by Captain Bert Skeel, Cleveland, flying a Thomas-Morse pursuit plane 146.45 miles per hour. The length of this race was 200 kilometers (124.28 miles).

The Third Race

The third and last race was for the Liberty Engine Builders' trophy. This event was taken by Lieutenant C. McMullen of Brooks Field, Texas, flying 300 kilometers (186.42 miles) at an average speed of 129.93 miles per hour. He flew a Fokker Co-4, with a 400 horse power Liberty motor.

Four accidents marred the race but fortunately the pilots all escaped injury. Each time a ship was reported down the crowd, silently and anxiously awaited further word of the fate of the pilot and when they were informed that the daring aviators were unhurt roundly cheered.

ONE KILLED, ONE INJURED IN WRECK

HILOXI, Miss., Oct. 4.—Engineer Wiley Luzon, of Mobile, was believed to have been fatally injured and Fireman Sylvester Anthony of Mobile was seriously injured tonight when Louisville & Nashville passenger train No. 1 sideswiped northbound Train No. 134, the Piedmont Special New Orleans-New York Limited here tonight.

Luzon died in a local hospital several hours after the accident. J. V. Reel of New Orleans mail clerk, was the only other person reported to have been injured. His injuries were said to be slight.

Beyond receiving a severe shaking up none of the passengers aboard both trains were said to have been hurt.

SENATOR WATSON GIVES HIS VIEWS OF THE U. S.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—There is nothing the matter with the United States unless there is too much complaining of imaginary ills, Senator James A. Watson of Indiana, said tonight at the final meeting of the American Oil Men's association.

The remedy for this situation, Senator Watson said was for everyone to talk prosperity.

"We should look up instead of down," he said.

"The United States has the best government that the world has ever known and it gets better every day. The real industrial conditions ought to be set forth. We are the victims of demagogues, charlatans and false advertising."

LOW PRICES TURN FARMERS TOWARD MILK PRODUCTION

Result Has Been Overproduction in Some Localities

(By The Associated Press)
AURORA, Ill., Oct. 4.—Farmers in Northern Illinois counties, discouraged with the low prices they have been receiving for their crops, have been branching out into the dairy business in such large numbers that there is now an over supply of milk, speakers said at a district meeting of farm bureau representatives at Wheaton tonight. The present price of milk, $2.75 a hundred pounds attracted the agricultural farmer and as a result dairy cattle are being shipped into the district in large numbers the speakers said.

Walton Petet of Chicago, head of the cooperative marketing department of the Illinois association told the farmers that their success lies in the adoption of the cooperative marketing plan. The individual farmer is not getting proper prices for his product because he is not familiar with the many angles of the retailer and for that reason should become affiliated with the marketing association whose officers are familiar with the retail business, he said.

Farmers were present at the meeting from Cook, Kane, DuPage, Will, Lake and McHenry counties.

MISSIONARIES WORK IN THE COAL FIELDS

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Missionary work within the rural industrial coal fields containing 5,000,000 people with the great majority speaking a variety of foreign tongues, was described today by Dr. D. D. Forsyth of Philadelphia secretary of the home missionary board of the Methodist Episcopal church, speaking before the Rock River conference.

"We ordinarily think of rural problems as being limited to rural agricultural communities," he said. "As a matter of fact, there is a great variety of rural fields aside from these."

He divided home fields into the North American Indians, the Mormon territory, the negro, the industrial worker, the city, foreign language groups, rural groups, summer and winter resorts, education and military organizations, home missions, leadership, evangelism foreign language literature, good will industries and emergency needs.

COOLIDGE AND WIFE KEEP ANNIVERSARY

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—President and Mrs. Coolidge today observed their wedding anniversary in the White House but it was as simple and quiet as any of the 17 anniversaries that had preceded it.

When they were married 18 years ago, Mr. Coolidge was a struggling lawyer in Northampton, Mass., while Mrs. Coolidge as Miss Grace Goodhue had just given up teaching in the public schools of that community.

Their friends explained today that it was the custom in the family to observe all anniversaries and holidays very quietly and generally without the entertainment of any guests.

MANY ARE SLIGHTLY INJURED IN WRECK

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 4.—Twenty five persons were slightly injured when northbound passenger train No. 8 of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad smashed into the rear end of the northbound passenger train No. 6 of the Katy at Lilly, Ellis county, this morning. It was reported here tonight.

COMMENT MADE ON GROWTH OF BUREAUCRACY

Government Regulation of Business on Increase

(By The Associated Press)
BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 4.—If congress continues to establish bureaus and commissions to regulate business it will have to enlarge the District of Columbia to get territory on which to erect buildings to house "these more or less useless institutions," John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association told members of the Battle Creek Manufacturers' association tonight.

"As the government tightens its grip more and more on the business of the country the average business man seems to be less concerned," he said.

"It would seem that if the trend of the time is to be checked the manufacturer must do something more than deposit his individual vote at the polls. He must assume the leadership which conditions have placed on his shoulders, especially as to his own men. He cannot sit back longer and save his property from the grip of socialism and government ownership. He must act."

"He must take an interest in his organizations. On account of his being in the numerical minority and in the financial majority he will have to find some way of overcoming the discrepancy and the only way is to assume leadership and deliver more votes than his own."

ANOTHER SIDELIGHT ON DESTROYER LOSS

(By The Associated Press)
SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 4.—Navigators aboard the U. S. S. Kennedy, which was leading the rearward division of Destroyer Squadron Eleven, when it steamed into the rocks off Honda, Cal., September 8, knew that they were getting close to Point Arguello and sheered westward almost at the same time that the seven ships ahead of them plowed thru the surf to destruction, Lieutenant Commander Robert E. Bell late today told the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster.

Despite this realization of danger the witness said he would have attempted the fatal eastward turn with the other vessels had he not noticed that ships ahead of the Kennedy were slowing down and appeared to be in some confusion. He would have done this he told the court because destroyer doctrines "require me to follow the leader."

BANDITS CAPTURED

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 4.—Three hours after aiding in the capture this afternoon of Ed Lockhart, notorious southwestern bandit, Grover C. Monroe, undersheriff of Delaware county, Okla., early tonight captured Carl Reasor, first cousin of Al Spencer, the outlaw recently shot down by a posse of officers near the Oklahoma-Kansas line.

VISITS IN CHICAGO

AMBASSADORS TO LONDON AND ROME HAVE QUIT POSTS

Harvey Resignation to Take Effect About First of Year and That of Child at Once—Believed in Accordance with Agreement With Late President—First Changes

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The resignations of Ambassadors Harvey at London and Child at Rome, submitted for private reasons and under agreements reached with the Harding administration, have been accepted, marking the first big change in the American diplomatic service since President Coolidge took office.

Ambassador Harvey will quit his post about the first of the year. Ambassador Child, who has either left or is about to leave Rome for the United States, will not go back. None of the other American ambassadors or ministers, the state department said in making the announcement, has any similar agreement limiting his term of service so far as known.

The only explanation of the two resignations given in official quarters was that in both cases the ambassadors had a few months ago reached agreements with President Harding as to the length of time they would continue at their posts.

By the terms of that paragraph, as interpreted by Dr. Hugo Preuss who drafted the constitution, President Ebert—if the chancellor's cabinet reports a minority government—must dictate such laws and relief measures as are demanded by the economic, financial and social situation. A constitutional dictatorship it is believed is the sole alternative left to the president and former chancellor in view of Stresemann's inability to command a two thirds majority support in the reichstag which is necessary to legalize his authorization law. The parliamentary situation today gave no indication that Dr. Stresemann would be able to count on a dependable working support even if he were assured of the votes of the German nationalists. In order to relieve him of any apprehension or feelings of insecurity so far as accounting for his stewardship to the reichstag is concerned, it will become necessary for President Ebert to decree an extraordinary dictator decree which would permanently relieve Dr. Stresemann from the shifting approval of permanent hostility of the reichstag.

SOVIET RUSSIA AND FINLAND AT OUTS

(By The Associated Press)
STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4.—(By the A. P.)—A serious dispute has arisen between Soviet Russia and Finland in consequence of the recent assassinations of M. Lavofo and Leshneve, Russian members of the Karelian frontier commission. The Russian representative at Helsinki has delivered a sharp note to the Finnish government demanding the appointment of a mixed commission to investigate the assassinations, punishment of the murderers in accordance with Russian law as the commissioners were slain on Russian territory and the deposit by Finland of 1,500,000 gold marks as a guaranty for compensation.

Pending a settlement, Russia has broken off her relations with Finland.

The Soviet government holds Finland responsible for the reason that the assassins, according to Russian reports came from Finland and returned to that country after the crime, which occurred about a mile within the Russian frontier.

WILL PROCLAIM A TURKISH REPUBLIC

(By The Associated Press)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 4.—The new Turkish constitution will provide that Turkey be proclaimed a Republic, with a president elected for a period of four or five years. It was learned today.

The National assembly, which has legislative power only, the executive power being entrusted to a cabinet responsible to the assembly.

A council of state will fulfill the functions usually cared for by a parliamentary upper house. The members of the council will be appointed by the president of the republic.

VISIT IN VIRGINIA

Mrs. John Buckley and Mrs. Thomas Heaton of this city were guests yesterday at the meeting of the Virginia Woman's Club.

UNABLE EFFECT DISLODGE OF PRISONERS

Barricaded in Prison Room Since Wednesday Morning

(By The Associated Press)
PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 4.—A detail of twenty five national guardsmen from a company at Mayfield was ordered to reinforce the machine gun troop from Hopkinsville on riot duty at the Western Kentucky State Penitentiary at Eddyville, by Governor Edwin P. Morrow late tonight.

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 4.—Rifles and machine guns which had been pouring a hail of bullets into the mess hall of the state penitentiary here where three convicts have been barricaded since a dash for liberty Wednesday morning in which three were killed were silenced soon after dark tonight when besiegers who ventured from cover were not fired upon by the (tenants of the improvised fortress.

Awaiting Daylight

Opinion was that the desperadoes were dead or desperately wounded. In view however, of the possibility that the convicts withheld their fire to conserve a small stock of ammunition for a last desperate stand when the attackers should enter the building it practically had been determined to maintain a guard about the place tonight and await daylight for further action.

That one at least of the barricaded building's defenders was alive was proved soon after firing ceased when a man attempted to leave by the main doorway. Guards opened fire and the man disappeared back into the darkened building.

WELFARE WORKERS PICK UP YOUNGSTERS

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 4.—An eighteen year old bride whose husband had deserted her in Frankfort, Ind., and who with her brother and two boy friends, without funds, were trying to get back to their home in Montana, were taken from a Big Four Freight train here late this afternoon.

The girl was attired in overalls and shirt.

Arrangements have been made by welfare workers to give proper clothes and have her taken to her home in Montana.

The Social Service league campaign for funds has not ended, although it has progressed far enough to show public interest and sympathy. About one-third of the number of prospective contributors have been seen and a little more than one-third of the quota of $3,000 has been raised.
If the solicitors keep busy there is no doubt about the success of the movement. The Social Service league has demonstrated thru several years the effectiveness of its work and so has established itself in the confidence of a great many people.

Lloyd George, who though no longer premier of England, remains a conspicuous world figure, is soon to be in Illinois. He is to address a convention in Chicago of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an organization of newspapers and magazines and Springfield has also been fortunate in securing his presence.

Lloyd George is the last of the great war time leaders to succumb to change in public sentiment, many of those who know something of the character of the Welshman, know his astuteness, his vision, as to world affairs, as well as those more intimately associated with England, feel very sure that he will "come back."

Such affairs as that held last night when the members of two men's organizations met socially, augur well for Jacksonville. Those who do not happen to belong to the Kiwanis or Rotary clubs of Jacksonville need have no feeling of jealousy or criticism for these organizations. Nearly all of the other organizations seek to especially benefit the members. Not so with Kiwanis and Rotary.

Their purpose is to help the community, and the consistent member of either one of these clubs must be a worker for community betterment—must honestly seek in an unselfish way to help others.

There cannot be too many organizations of this kind in any community, and after all, unselfish service in its relation to private or public affairs is nothing else but the applied Christianity that so many of the real leaders of thought today are saying that society and the world at large really need.

Proportional representation is making headway in this country.
It is only five years since the first American city, Ashtabula, O., adopted the system. Now it is in use in several cities, and goes into effect Nov. 6 in Cleveland, and that so many of the real leaders
of thought today are saying that society and the world at large
really need.

No city trying "P. R." seems to have given it up voluntarily, though West Hartford, Conn., was deprived of the plan by the state legislature and it was lost to Kalamazoo, Mich., and Sacramento, Calif., by court decisions.
Sacramento is now trying to regain it.

One of the curious things about proportional representation is that it is regarded in America as an untried novelty. It was adopted in Denmark more than half a century ago and is in general use in Europe and many parts of the British Empire. A statistician reports that altogether, about 250,000,000 people are now living under some degree of this elective system.

SPEECHES OR WORK.

There will be a memorial service held in New York next month in honor of President Harding.
President Coolidge was asked to participate.

It would have been a very appropriate thing for him to do.
Sentiment and tact, no doubt, both suggested his acceptance. To refuse would have seemed a peculiarly ungracious thing. But Mr.
Coolidge, with the big demands of his job in mind, put it up to the delegation inviting him.
Would the New Yorkers be asked, rather have him take the time necessary to prepare an address in honor of his predecessor, and go to New York and deliver it, or remain on the job in Washington devoting his time to putting into effect his predecessor's policies.

When the matter was put in that way, the delegation reluctantly admitted that the President had probably better stay on the job.

It would be a blessing if, without having the same choice put to them formally, a few hundred other delegations every year could show the same consideration for the great and burdensome office of President.

As a result of conferences held by the State Department with representatives of the Republic of Cuba, the Tarafa Bill has been amended in form acceptable to the United States and passed the Cuban Senate.

It will be recalled that as originally passed by the Cuban House of Representatives the bill was objected to by large American sugar interests, which represented to the State Department that the bill in that form would confiscate millions of dollars worth of property owned by Americans in Cuba. The so-called confisca-tory features consisted of provisions for the closing of some 47 ports which were operated by sugar companies in conjunction with private railways extending from their sugar mills. Had these ports been closed, it was claimed, the privately owned property at those ports, as well as the railway lines, would have been rendered useless. As a result of protests the State Department requested the Cuban Government to hold up the bill until an investigation could be had, a request with which the Cuban Government courteously complied.

The incident furnishes one more example of the watchful eye of the Republican Administration in assuring Americans doing business in foreign countries fair and equitable treatment. This is not an administration of surrender.

'The Huntress'

The rollicking tale of a feminine go-getter and her relentless man hunt—
You'll laugh till you cry.
Sam Gladding did not want her at all, but she wanted him—and this is what he got.

—and you'll get—

You'll get a kick out of this new show. It's a Western of a new type. Bela proves that the female of the species is a more relentless go-getter than the male—and the proving will give you a mighty satisfactory entertainment. Come!

HIGH ENTHUSIASM
AT PYTHIAN MEETING

Favorite Lodge Members Hear Literary and Musical Program—Will Confer Rank Next Week

A large crowd and much enthusiasm were the chief features of the first meeting of Favorite Lodge 376, Knights of Pythias, held last night at Castle Hall.
Miss Gwendolyn Shroyer gave several vocal selections, accompanied on the piano by Miss Velma Kitchell. These young ladies are students at Illinois Woman's College. Franklin Scott, a student at Illinois college, gave several readings. The work of the young people in entertaining earned hearty applause from the Pythians.

R. Allen Stevens of Springfield gave an address along Pythian lines, dealing with organization with a view to obtaining the best results.
Light refreshments and a social hour followed the program. The lodge will get down to work next Thursday evening, when the rank of Page will be conferred on a number of candidates.

SOUTH ROAD CONTRACT
WILL SOON BE AWARDED

A Quincy contractor, it is understood, will soon be awarded the contract for the building of a hard road south from this city toward Woodson. The bid submitted at the recent hearing was higher than the state highway department thinks should be the case, but County Supt. L. V.
Baldwin said yesterday that it is understood that the figures were revised and that the contract will very soon be awarded.
The highway department will not let contracts unless they come within the limit fixed by the department. The contractor mentioned was here recently to talk over preliminary plans for the work and is expecting to have the C. & A. build a switch near the next railroad crossing south of the Vandalla road.

PICNIC AT ARENZVILLE

The annual picnic of the Commercial Club of Arenzville was held Thursday with a good crowd present. There were various contests, and also miscellaneous exhibits of farm products which were judged by County Farm Adviser G. B. Kendall. Master of Ceremonies Brockhouse had prepared a splendid program for the day and the entire session was both interesting and instructive.
Judge Russell, city judge of Beardstown, was one of the principal speakers and Arenzville band entertained the crowd during the day with several splendid selections.

S. S. L. CAMPAIGN FOR

FUNDS PROGRESSES

The workers in the Social Service league campaign for funds met at luncheon at the Peacock inn Thursday at noon. The reports made at this time were very gratifying, indicating that over $1,000 has already been secured in pledges. Only about one-third of the total field has thus far been canvassed, so there is every prospect of reaching the goal of $3,000.

Dr. Grace Dewey, chairman of the committee, is anxious that the canvassers complete their work by Saturday afternoon. All workers are asked to turn in their reports at the chamber of commerce Saturday afternoon if at all possible.

It is the hope of the committee that the entire fund will be raised before the time of the annual meeting, which is to be held on Tuesday evening, Oct. 9. Supper is to be served at the Congregational church on that occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter and daughter, Eloise, were in the city from Litterberry Thursday.

artistic effect.

Lucknow, India. (By the A. P.)—The work of building the Sarda canal is now in full swing. This canal is part of a huge irrigation scheme in the central provinces which ultimately will bring 1,750,000 acres of land under cultivation at an estimated cost of $29,000,000.

More than 27,000 men are now at work on the project, and completion is expected in four years. With it will come relief, it is hoped, from the grain famines in central India.

WHY IT IS "ARKANSAW"

Committee Decided on Indian Name for State Formerly Called Arkansas.

The Arkansaws were a tribe of Indians who roamed the region which now bears their name. When the French missionaries of the time of Marquette came along they attempted to reproduce phonetically in French the Indian sounds. So they selected "Arkansas" as the best concoction for the French ending "as" is pronounced as a nasal "agh." As for Kansas, Cortez pronounced it Kansaw. In a military report sent at the time, the name was spelled Kansa, for that was the English. The English could come to reproducing, phonetically, the French sounds.

In the early days of Arkansas the pronunciation of the name of the state was a variable thing. From 1844 to 1848 Arkansas was represented in the Senate by Chester Ashley, who was a New Englander, and Ambrose Simms, who hailed from Tennessee. Mr. Ashley didn't depart from "Arkansas," and Mr. Simms stuck to "Arkansasaw." The vice president at the time was George M. Dallas of Pennsylvania, who, it must be admitted, showed much tact; for when he spoke of the state to Ashley he said "Arkansas," and when he mentioned it to Simms he said "Arkansasaw." Finally a committee was appointed to settle the matter definitely and Arkansas won.

HAZARD OF "DARK STAGE"

Actors Frequently Befuddled When Lights Are Shut Off at End of Scenes.

In an American quick-fire play there occurred one rapid change of scene which made it impossible to fix the scenery in position. Portions of it, therefore, were held up by concealed stage hands. Miss Lord had to rush onto the darkened stage just as her stage husband was committing suicide and utter a piercing shriek.

On the night in question she mistook her shrieks in the darkness, and gave her shriek in the wrong spot. It happened to be right in the ear of one of the stage hands holding up a piece of scenery. He promptly responded to her shriek with another, and fell over one way, while his scenery fell over the other. Then the shrieks became general.

Somewhat reminiscent, this, of another story in which an actor lost his bearings on a darkened stage. The sudden darkness was used instead of a curtain at the end of a scene, and when the lights went up again for his call he was discovered bowing to the back-cloth.

Oration in Crimson Gulch. "You placed a pitcher on the table," whispered Senator Sorghum to the chairman of the reception committee, "but I notice you didn't put water in it."

"I hurried around to give you a tip about that," said Judge Cactus Joe (the title having been conferred on him by popular consent for the purpose of this occasion). "I left the water out 'cause it 'ud only be in your own way. See that feller over there with eyebrows as big as his mustache?"

"That's Tarantula Tim. He makes a specialty of breaking up meetings. That pitcher ain't for you to drink out of. It's for you to throw as straight as you know how the minute you see Tim showin' a sign of gettin' restless."

Professional Opinion. Kathie, who's fluffy and blonde and demure, was having a little trouble with her eyes. It chanced that the specialist to whom she went was young and handsome. Kathie went every day for a week. Then the young man began calling at her home.

One evening dad finally detached himself from Wild West stories long enough to make an inquiry.

"Well, well, Kathie, what does the doctor say about your eyes?" "Oh, he says they are beautiful."

—New York Sun and Globe.

Kind of a Mean Shot. A small-town constable in an eastern state hauled a motorist. "Haven't you been reading the signs along the road?"

"Yes."

"What do they say?" "Twenty-five miles an hour on roads—fifteen miles through towns. You should have slowed down," declared the official. "You are now inside our town limits. You admit the signs are plain enough."

"Plain enough," responded the motorist. "But why don't you label your towns?"

Each for Himself. When 40 women met recently to form a musical club in W., and were asked to write on slips of paper the name of their choice for president, the organization of the club had to be abandoned because the nominating committee found on the slips the names of 39 of those present. The fortieth slip bore the word "Me."—Music Courier.

Not to Be Monopolized. Truth and understanding are not such wares as to be monopolized and traded in by tickets and statutes and standards. We must not think to make a staple commodity of all the knowledge in the land, to mark and license it like our broadcloth and our woolpacks.—John Milton.

Might Even Be Worse. The Sloth—Say, steward, that chattering parrot and the noisy elephant are keeping me awake. Can't you persuade them to go to sleep?

Morph (the steward)—I fear it will do no good, sir. The parrot talks in his sleep and the elephant snores.

PARALLEL SEEN IN PRIMO RIVERA COUP

Rivera and Mussolini Emulating Spanish Statesman Who Caused Overthrow of Queen Isabella.

Berlin, Sept.—German newspapers are recalling the fact that it was an incident similar to General Primo Rivera's coup d'état in Spain from which the Franco-Prussian war sprang.

Primo Rivera and Benito Mussolini, the Italian premier, both are emulating Juan Prim, the Spanish statesman and General, who was the original Fascista and overthrew Queen Isabella II, in 1868 forcing her and her corrupt court to flee to France. The republic which General Prim and his associates established was short-lived and soon was restored to a monarchy. Prince Leopold, a Southern Hohenzollern, was asked to become Spain's king. France immediately charged this was an effort on the part of Germany to undermine France's power, and the French ambassador, Count Vincent Benedetti, met King Wilhelm I. at Ems, and asked him to order Leopold not to accept the Spanish offer. Wilhelm's treatment of Count Benedetti enraged the French public and although Leopold declined the Spanish throne France insisted that no German prince would ascend the Castilian Throne. The general confusion and indignation which resulted were the immediate causes of the war which ended so disastrously for France.

General Prim's movement was against the monarch as well as the government, while Primo Rivera is not trying to upset King Alfonso, having apparently learned by Prim's experiment that a complete overturning of the governmental system is hazardous and may involve the interference of other European powers.

General Prim and his associates finally induced Prince Amadeo, second son of King Emmanuel of Italy, to accept the Spanish throne in 1870. General Prim was assassinated immediately after King Amadeo was crowned.

Spain escaped being involved in the Franco-Prussian war but Amadeo was allowed to rule for only two years, as the Spaniards did not relish the idea of having an Italian as their king.

Berlin theatre managers have had much difficulty in arriving at a stable figure for actors' salaries and it finally has been agreed that wages shall be fixed at the price of a certain number of stall seats. One manager had an argument with a leading actor, whose nightly wage was the price of five stall seats, and decided to fine him, but the entire company protested. The manager thereupon reduced the price of the stall seats for one night thus imposing the fine on all members of the company in such a manner that they could not claim a breach of contract.

Members of the Danzig Yacht Club, who sailed up to Petrograd in the Yacht Peter of Danzig, had a strange experience with Bolshevik courts and Bolshevik hospitality.

After officials at Kronstadt, a former outer fortification at the mouth of the river Neva, had inspected the yacht's papers and declared them in order, the Peter sailed up the river. But the Petrograd authorities did not consider the yacht's papers satisfactory for a visit to the great harbor and reported the case to the Central government which ordered the crew of the yacht be tried by a court consisting of one commissar, one judge and one woman assessor.

The court found the crew guilty of violating the bolshevist regulations and imposed a prison sentence of four weeks. This sentence, however, was immediately suspended because of the good relations between Germany and Soviet Russia, and the woman assessor invited the entire party to dinner.

COMPARISON OF FARM LABOR MADE BY TEST

Research at University of Illinois Shows Work Done in Much Less Time.

Urbana, Ill.—What degree of efficiency has farm labor reached as compared with 25 years ago?

A comparison of the time required on corn in 1898 and 1922 shows that farm labor is now performing the main operations in 54 of the 91 per cent of the time that was required at the earlier date, according to E. Rauchenstein of the department of farm organization, University of Illinois.

In 1898 it required 3.75 hours of man labor to plow one acre with horse power, while in 1922 it required but two hours working with the same motive power, showing that the time required in 1922 was but 54 per cent of that required in 1898.

For planting, the figures were .77 of an hour of man labor per acre in 1898, while in 1922 they were .65, a reduction to 84 per cent in the latest year. It required 4.57 hours to cultivate an acre in the former year, while in the latter the same work was done in 4.15 hours, or 91 per cent of the time required in 1898.

For planting, the figures were .77 of an hour of man labor in 1898, while in 1922 they were .65.

For husking it took slightly over nine hours of man labor per acre in 1898, while 26 years later the same work was being done in five hours, a little over half of the earlier requirement. The data was taken according to Mr. Rauchenstein from an Illinois agricultural experiment station bulletin for 1923 and for 1922 from detailed accounts on 15 farms in Champaign and Piatt counties.

ENGLAND SATISFIED WITH SPORT RESULT

All Results Reviewed from Non-stop Dancing to Boxing and Yachting Contests

LONDON. (By the A. P.)—The season of international sporting events in Europe is drawing to an end, and Britain, glancing back at the spring and summer, is rather satisfied with her achievements. America didn't win everything. That alone is considerable satisfaction to those who have defended the British against their own critics, who have been crying out that the race had become decadent upon the fields of sport.

Perhaps the beginning of the sports season was the craze over the non-stop dancing. Britain was the first to contract that fever. Her human butterflies flitted to fox-trot tunes for 15, 20, 24 hours without a pause, and then the epidemic caught America. A day and a night was just a good start over there. The marathon dancers kept going several nights until, finally, one man dropped dead with his dancing pumps on. Well, the British thought, let them have the silly old championship; one ought to be moderate about such things.

Racing Results
In racing the British watched an American horse, Sergeant Murphy, win their Grand National, supreme among steeple-chases but the Yankee jockeys got nowhere in the Derby, so that was all square. Most joyous of all were the British successes against the invading American golf players. The amateur championship remained at home and the open championship was won back from the United States, and both by young players. Wethered, the new amateur champion, and Havers, the open title holder, are in their middle twenties. Although they kept their championships, the British lost golf honors to America. The St. Georges Golf Vase was won by Francis Cuyet of Boston in a play-off with Dr. Willing of Portland, Oregon, and—worst of all—the American amateurs retained the Walker Cup over the sacred fairways of St. Andrews, after the British had all but won it. That afternoon, when the fighting Yankees crushed the British after the latter had seemingly made the cup sure for themselves, is still referred to as "the blackest day in the history of British golf."

Britain's Tennis
The British expected to be beaten in tennis, and they were. After watching two Americans, William M. Johnston and Francis T. Hunter, fight out the finals at Wimbledon, and seeing Suzanne Lenglen of France for the fifth time beat the best of their women players, they are beginning to think less of orthodoxy and more of slamming the ball with all their might. They still believe orthodoxy is pretty, but they have begun to ask themselves whether it is art. In general the prevailing impression is to remodel the game over here on the speed and dash of the conquering Americans and French.

In yachting, dear to the hearts of this sea-faring race, native skippers beat the six meter craft brought over from America to race in the Solent. On the cinders Oxford and Cambridge triumphed over Harvard and Yale.

Sculling Race
The Diamond Sculls, historic rowing trophy, came back to British hands after a year in the possession of Walter Hoover, American star. Hoover was eliminated in the first heat of this year's Henley regatta when he cracked an oar, and M. K. Morris of London, succeeded to the title.

Fencing honors also went to Britain when an American team lost an international match in London and with it the Robert M. Thompson trophy held by the United States since 1921.

George S. Covey, holder of the world's professional court tennis title, repelled the invasion of Walter Kinsella, of New York.

Boxing flourishes, but nothing in the nature of a world-champion is in sight in British rings. Joe Beckitt, more amusing now than mighty, seems unable or unwilling to defend himself even against the magazine humorist.

For the most part the English stick to their dear old leisurely cricket in the summer and football in the winter, but in every other sport they are more up and doing this year than at any time since the war.

PRIZED METEORITES AT ILLINOIS MUSEUM

Are Contributed from Widely Differing Points—Most Prized Is from South Africa

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (By the A. P.)—Meteorites, strange elements of the universe, falling from other planets at the rate of 45 miles a second, have been contributed to the Illinois State museum by sister states of Illinois, but there is no record of one ever having been found in this state, according to Professor A. R. Crook, curator of the museum.

"Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, and several western states have contributed meteorites to the museum," said Prof. Crook, "but I have been looking for them in Illinois without success for 30 years."

The most prized meteorite in the museum is from South Africa and, according to Professor Crook it is an extraordinary "fall," as a meteorite is termed by geologists.

Numerous reports have reached the museum that meteorites have been found somewhere in the state. Prof. Crook, upon investigating the report, has found in each case the "stone," although unfamiliar to local inhabitants, are the result of "drifts" during the glacial period.

The meteorite appears in two substances, stone and iron. The iron contains nickel, not mixed through as an alloy, but crystallized in a pyramidal figure. An acid test makes the figures stand out. These figures are known as Wydmanstätten, named after the discoverer.

"Due to the terrific speed with which it travels through space, the meteorite is rounded out in front. The friction melts the metal causing it to flow to the rear," he said.

Professor Crook values from meteorites at from $1 to $2 a pound, and suggests that any person discovering one should call it to the attention of the museum or state geologists at Urbana.

FIRE CAUSES HEAVY PROPERTY LOSS

BUCKTHORPE BUILDING ON EAST STATE DAMAGED

Fire Originated in Kubota Studio—Stocks of Armstrong Drug Store and Shanahan Grocery Damaged by Fire and Water—Tailoring Company Stock Moved Across Street

Fire which broke out at about 7:45 o'clock Thursday evening in the Kubota Studio over 235-237 East State street partially gutted the interior of the second story of the building and caused considerable loss on account of smoke and water to the grocery stock of P. J. Shanahan, and the stock in the Armstrong Drug Store, which are directly beneath the Kubota Studio.

The general alarm was sounded about 8 o'clock, and on arrival the firemen found a difficult fire to fight on account of the immense amount of smoke in the building, making it impossible for a while for the firemen to enter the interior where most of the active fire was located. Four lines of hose were used and the fire was under full control within an hour.

At the crowded Rialto theatre nearby the patrons who were enjoying the show at the time cleared the place quietly and without any excitement or mishap. Although the fire did not reach into the next building west of the Armstrong store, and occupied by the Jacksonville Tailoring company, all of the materials on hand were removed to a place of safety in the Pacific hotel building.

The fire started in the northwest corner of the studio, where a stove was located in which Mr. Kubota stated that he had a small fire during the early morning.

The building formerly a part of the Ironmonger estate is owned by Dr. R. R. Buckthorpe and the loss is partially covered by insurance. The Studio property, and also the stock of goods owned by P. J. Shanahan and the Armstrong drug store, were also partially covered.

No close estimate of the damage could be made last night as the greatest damage on the lower floors was caused by the smoke, and the flood of water which it was necessary to use to extinguish the fire before it should spread to other adjacent buildings.

KIWANIANS GUESTS AT ROTARY DINNER

Event Thursday Night Further Cemented Friendship of Two Local Service Organizations—Fine Program Given.

Members of the Jacksonville Kiwanis club were guests of the Rotary club at dinner given Thursday evening at Central Christian church. A get together program was carried out, concluding with an address by Dr. W. R. Bennett of Chicago, on "The Power of Living."

This address in a very dramatic way summed up the value of service and unselfishness, proving as it was expected, a climax for the occasion. R. W. Woolston, vice president of Rotary club, presided and expressed regret that Dr. A. H. Dollear, president of the club, was unable to be present at this joint meeting, which he was so largely instrumental in arranging.

Rev. M. L. Pontius spoke in behalf of President Dollear and responses for Kiwanis were made by President C. Y. Rowe and by Carl E. Robinson.

The community band under the leadership of J. Bart Johnson furnished an admirable program and there was also plenty of mass singing under the joint leadership of William A. Berryman, song leader of Kiwanis club, and Albert C. Metcalf, who has the same difficult role for Rotary. Willard Wesner was the accompanist. John M. Rule of Kiwanis, led in singing "Land of Mine."

Before the dinner invocation was said by Rev. George E. Stickner. The dinner service was fully up to the high standard that the ladies of the Christian church have maintained thru a period of years. All the setting was for sociability and informality and it was an occasion on which everybody felt perfectly at home.

Clubs Have Joint Tasks

Dr. Dollear in speaking for Dr. Dollear said that he must choose his words carefully for the telephone radio apparatus on the table transmitted all that was being said to Dr. Dollear in his room at home. R. W. Woolston and J. H. Dial had arranged for this service.

The thought behind the invitation from Rotary, Mr. Pontius said, was to further cement the relationships of good fellowship between the two clubs, with the realization that the worth while tasks are common tasks and must be accomplished thru joint activity.

He said that the sociability of the occasion was valuable just as it is in the separate club meetings, but after all, service is the real aim of both Kiwanis and Rotary and as they have a sincere appreciation of that fact do the clubs become really living forces for good.

Dr. Bennett has been heard in Jacksonville before on the chautauqua platform and the good impression made at the earlier date was further strengthened last night. The speaker assembled under the theme "The Power of Living," an abundance of arguments drawn from life and science and history and religion, to show that individual effort is good but that it fails unless the individuals eventually get into groups. Edison, he said, succeeded not alone by his own efforts but because he was able to persuade others to work with him in solving problems.

Big Things in Business

We are all human dynamos, he said, and the kind of power we generate depends upon our condition and our viewpoint. Roger Babson, J. Pierpont Morgan and President Coolidge were quoted as saying in different ways that the greatest need of this country and the world today is spiritual power—a wider recognition of the value of morality. Credit, confidence, character, conscience are the big things in business today and in all other departments of life. Society will come to solve its problems, the speaker said, as people recognize that all useful work is divine, and so see each other in correct relationships of life. This spirit will automatically settle the relations of employer and employee.

Power is without value unless it is used, Dr. Bennett said, and then he emphasized the thought that all that one keeps eventually is that which he gives away in service and unselfishness. To further drive home this thought he pictured the horror of living absolutely alone, of trying only to care for one's self, a pathway which almost certainly leads to insanity or suicide.

So the word "service" which is really the motto for both clubs, was emphasized anew and the speaker very impressively pointed out that unselfish service which may be given in many, many differing ways, is by all odds the greatest thing in the world.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE OPENED THURSDAY

Sessions Were Largely Attended—Addresses Made by Prof. Beeler and Others of Practical Value.

The teachers of Morgan county met yesterday morning in the High School auditorium at 9:30 o'clock for the first institute of the school year. There was an exceptionally large number of teachers present and all were in readiness to receive the valuable information awaiting them.

After the opening exercises, the body was addressed by Prof. L. A. Beeler, formerly of the Chicago University and at the present time head of the State Normal School at Dillon, Montana. Prof. Beeler's lecture of yesterday morning was on the subject of Psychology and proved to be as interesting as any of the lectures which he has given. Mr. Beeler has been a speaker at the Morgan County Institute before and is very popular among the teachers, because of his interesting talks and pleasing personality as well.

Dean Manchester of the State Normal School at Normal, Ill., addressed the teachers in a very interesting speech later in the morning and again yesterday afternoon.

Miss Hill had charge of the primary meetings and gave some very valuable suggestions to the primary teachers on their phase of the work.

Mr. Thrasher, who officiated and spoke at the meeting of the High School teachers was a very interesting speaker and well worth hearing. Mr. Beeler had charge of the Grammar School section and his ability is too well known to mention further. Today a speaker of great interest will be Frank Walter Allen, literary editor of the State Journal of Springfield, who is also author of a number of well known books. Mr. Allen is a very popular lecturer and Mr. Vasconcellos is fortunate in securing him.

ELLINGTON SALE IS HELD AT WOODSON

A sale of livestock and other goods took place yesterday on the farm of James Ellington, six miles southeast of Woodson. The sale was largely attended and bidding was brisk. The proceeds of the sale amounted to about $1,200. Lunch was served on the grounds by the ladies of Zion M. E. church. Elvin Spencer served as auctioneer and Everett Rogers as clerk.

Cows brought about $50 each. One team of mules sold for $120 and a team of yearling colts for $85. Shoats averaged about $7 a head, and sows about $15 each. Calves ranged in price from $12 to $15 a head.

Mr. Ellington plans to go in for truck farming and will work on a smaller scale, hence the sale to reduce his equipment.

SALVATION ARMY - AIDING JAPANESE

Local Corps to Sell Produce Saturday to Secure Additional Funds for Relief in Stricken Area

A sale of farm produce will take place Saturday at the Salvation Army barracks. The members of the corps are busy gathering in the various articles, which will be sold in the basement of the barracks. The funds collected will go to swell the funds being raised by the Army for Japanese relief.

The Salvation Army now has 200 first aid stations in the stricken districts of Tokyo and Yokohama. A number of the native workers perished in the disaster, and much of the equipment of the Army was lost. However, the work of relief is proceeding with the usual efficiency and devoted spirit of the Salvation Army, displayed in a crisis.

AGED MAN INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Newton Gilmore Has Hip Fractured When Struck by Automobile Driven by Waverly Resident.

Newton Gilmore, aged 84, who resides on West Morgan street, was taken to Passavant hospital Thursday morning, the victim of an automobile accident which occurred in front of the Douglas hotel Thursday morning.

A car driven by Mrs. Sims of Waverly approached the corner under a very slow rate of speed, according to bystanders, just as Mr. Gilmore was starting across the street. Mrs. Sims states that she blew her horn to warn him, but as his hearing is not very acute he evidently did not hear the warning and as a result the fender of the car struck him, throwing him to the pavement.

Mrs. Sims drove to the police station and reported the accident, and the ambulance was called to remove Mr. Gilmore to Passavant hospital, where an X-ray picture of the hip was taken under the direction of Dr. H. C. Woltman, the picture showing that the hip was fractured, in addition to many other bruises of less importance.

William J. Devlin from Virginia was in the city Thursday.

MISS IDA VENNEN REMEMBERED ON BIRTHDAY

Miss Ida Vennen, superintendent of Passavant hospital, whose birthday anniversary occurred Wednesday, was the recipient of a very beautiful bouquet of roses, the gift of the nurses of the hospital. At the hospital at the present time there are twenty-five nurses, and five graduate nurses on general duty, and each of the nurses presented one rose, making in all a very large bouquet. Miss Vennen states that this is the 12th birthday which she has enjoyed at Passavant hospital.

RUNS NEEDLE INTO HAND

Mrs. Ada Baptist, 908 East Independence avenue, had the misfortune to run a needle into the fleshy part of her hand Thursday morning, the needle breaking off and remaining in the hand. She was taken to Passavant hospital and an X-ray picture taken of the injury by Dr. W. P. Duncan, who removed the needle after locating it by means of the picture, after which Mrs. Baptist returned to her home.

Miss Sipple was united in marriage at her home in Pekin at 10 o'clock Thursday morning to Walter Heckman of Schenectady, N. Y.

Shortly after the ceremony the bridal couple left for a trip thru the east, after which they will be at home in Schenectady, where Mr. Heckman has a responsible position with the General Electric Co. ## CHAMPION FOUND FOR THE BOYS OF TODAY

Blame for Conditions so Greatly Criticized Placed Squarely With Parents — Is Optimistic.

CHICAGO—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty-first century youth, charged in many quarters as about the most thoughtless, careless, most ungrateful and generally unregenerate lot the world has ever known, today found a champion in a father of boys who declared himself a sinner in many respects and remiss as a churchman in some Christian duties, but nevertheless of the opinion "we need not greatly worry." "Frankly, my brethren," said he, "I believe we are largely to blame."

Other fathers and mothers of families throughout the land, attending the International Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, many with their generation of today, heard Prof. John H. Frizzell of Philadelphia give his reasons why and apparently found some logic in the argument. Prof. Frizzell told them the present generation will outgrow much of its "distemper" just as it did the "croup, the measles and the mumps, if during the period of illness it gets the right sort of treatment in the school, the home and the church.

As Prof. Frizzell is the Junior work secretary of the order, for years principal of the boys' high school and for still more years a member of the Pennsylvania state college faculty, together with being the head of a happy family, the listeners indicated the source evidently knew whereof he spoke. Even in the moments of paternal arraignment, consciousness of their children's presence seemed absent so sincere did Prof. Frizzell appeal to them.

The present generation talks a lot, often in a loud and slangy and sometimes vulgar way, largely for the sake of hearing itself talk, and then goes ahead and does just about what youth has been doing for two thousand years," said Prof. Frizzell. "It is freer, more frank, outspoken than we are, but otherwise it has not discovered anything new in the matter of worrying its elders."

"The change in manners, which I believe will be outgrown with other youthful ailments, is so irritating to many of us, that we often overlook any possible virtue that may lie in the changes in mind and spirit. As to the change in mind, it is a generation far more independent in thought than its predecessor, more courageous or better, perhaps more adventurous, less inclined to hypocrisy, and by the same token, more honest. Spiritually, it wants something. And it is to fill that want which you folk should make possible in getting the child into service in God's holy church."

Religion Obscure.
"To many children religion is an obscure thing, about which they know nothing. My experience has taught me to very humbly try to instruct boys in Christianity. After it has been explained it is a simple thing. There is nothing with regard to which the boy shows difference and secretiveness more than in his inner spiritual life. He dries up at the mention of it. So you must feel deep in reaching the spiritual longing."

While the professor said it was not in his province to suggest the sort of treatment for the occasion, he let his own ideas be known about as follows:

"The average boy is right at heart and his mistakes and failures are largely the reflection of our shortcomings—we men who moralize so much and fail so often in our leadership and example—who talk so much about our young people and do so little to really help them."

"That the trouble with most boys is the fathers they have, one which I am, do not take seriously enough our privilege as fathers."

Can't Be Bluffed.
"You can't bluff a boy, he sees thru hypocrisy quicker than any living human being and even his innate love and respect for his father, and his knowledge that it is for his own good that his dad is working, has all it can do in the face of such treatment to keep from turning sour and producing dissatisfaction and discouragement."

"The more I see of boys and their fathers, the more I am convinced of the difficulty that boys have in obeying the fifth commandment."

"Boys are human, just as we are, and have their rights, just as we have, which should be respected. They need directing and guiding, just as we do, not driving, but leading."

"It is possible to do much with boys but it doesn't pay to try to do much for them or against them."

"A broken will is a greater misfortune than a crippled body, but a directed and controlled will is the greatest gift you can give your boy, greater far than wealth or fame."
"If you will be a boy with your sons, they will strive to become men with you, for character and example are as contagious as measles and imitation is one of the strongest forces in the boy's mind."

Cure for Evil.
"The best cure for evil thought and temptation is directed fun shared with the boys, best for them, best for you."

"If you want your boys to be at home nights, you must make home the place with books, games and music, where with their gang they'd rather be than anywhere else."
"Getting the youth of the land into the church isn't so much a matter of making the church interesting to them, as it is a matter of setting them a fine Christian example of church-going. Don't send the children to Sunday school and church—go with them."

"A great many of us are far more interested in being successful business or professional men than we are in being successful fathers, and that is why we aren't satisfied with our boys, or with the present generation; that is why we wonder what is the matter with our churches and our schools."

ILLINOIS ONE TIME PRODUCER OF SALT
 Industry That Drove First White Inhabitants to Southern Part of State, Now Extinct.
 Springfield, (AP)—A one time great industry in Illinois, which drew the first white habitation to the southern part of the state, and in prehistoric times occupied the antecedents of the American Indian, is now extinct.
 Four thousand acres of land was devoted to that industry in Illinois when the federal government abandoned it. It was the manufacture of salt. When time wore on and the salt supply of the west came from elsewhere, the federal government donated the 40,000 acres to the state of Illinois. Half of the proceeds was used to establish the first penitentiary at Alton and the other half to improve the Wabash river, and drain the land along it.
 Observing scientists agree that sufficient evidence is presented to show that salt was manufactured in Southern Illinois by a people whose history antedates that of the Indian tribes who inhabited America at the coming of the Europeans. This evidence lies in the fact that the region of salt springs and salt licks, in Williamson, Saline and Gallatin counties, there are to be found vessels which, it is assumed, were employed in the manufacture of salt.
 Noted Localities
 Beside the Saline river, which runs through Williamson, Saline and Gallatin counties, there are two other noted salt localities. The first is a strong salt spring four miles from the town of Equality, Gallatin county. The second location was valued very highly by the Indians who called it "Half Moon Spring." It is located one mile from Equality on the Saline.
 The earliest reference to salt appeared in 1796 when the federal government ordered surveyors to "observe closely for mines, salt springs, and salt licks Northwest of the Ohio river."
 In 1800 William H. Harrison, then congressman from the territory northwest, recommended that salt springs and salt licks, the property of the United States at that time, be leased for a period of years, and in 1803 congress authorized the secretary of the treasury to lease the salt springs for the benefit of the government.
 Indian Treaties
 An Indian treaty in the same year ceded to the United States 2,038,400 acres of land in Southern Illinois and southern Indiana. In 1805 Harrison, then governor of the territory, appointed Isaac White, later an officer in the Illinois National Guard, as government agent for the salt licks.
 Following the government's lease, Gallatin county was the scene of a booming community, built around the salt industry. Professional "axe men," who cut the timber for the salt furnaces, 30 or 40 mule teams, firemen, kettle hands, coopers, salt packers, and salesmen, these industrious workers made up a thriving settlement.
 Salt production reached its peak in 1873 when a Southern Illinois firm produced 500 barrels every 24 hours. From this time a decrease in salt production was noticed until, in the latter part of the last century the industry became extinct.

 James Cumming of This City Receives Letter From Friend Giving Facts About Wreck at Sea.
 James Cumming of this city is in receipt of a letter from Barney Gallagher, of the U. S. navy, who was on board the U. S. S. Fuller when she went upon the rocks off Point Arguello. The letter gives a graphic description of the wreck and of subsequent events on board the ill-fated vessel.
 Mr. Cumming was formerly in the navy and on board the U. S. S. Fuller. The letter follows:
 United States Fleet Destroyer Squadron, Battle Fleet U. S. S. McCawley (276).
 28 September, 1923.
 U. S. S. Fuller.
 Dear Jimmy:—
 Received your letter just after we started to put this Ash Can in commission. We have been on board since Monday, but we just put her in commission yesterday at 11:00 a. m. Harry D. put her in as Captain. Davis was here but he has not received his orders to come here yet. The old man has been over at North Island ever since the wreck with the exception of one day that everybody was before Admiral Pratt. When Admiral Pratt asked him if he had anything to say against his crew he snapped out no, and when his mouth went back to battery you could not put a razor blade between his lips.
 Coming down from Oakland, running at about twenty knots we piled up on the rocks. I was about to take a drink of water when I saw a red flash through the fog, forward, so I dashed forward. When I was on the well deck we hit. At first I thought one of the leading ships was hit by another one and we had run over her. I dashed below and helped Tierney tie up the records, and I couldn't get the things tied, they kept slipping out of my hands; I was so nervous and anxious to get on topside again to see what it was all about. But don't you think for a second that the brains forgot to get a jersey and overcoat before I went up, as so many guys did.
 When we hit the topside it was enough to dishearten anyone. We had a 350 list to starboard. The only thing that saved us from slipping back sea and down was a large rock on the port side under the well deck. You know we must have been traveling to pile up like we did. Maybe you don't know that Tierney can't swim; well anyway they called for a crew for the lifeboat and the guys we thought were men or at least strong enough to pull an oar grabbed the air and he wanted to go in the boat, but I would not let him because there was hardly room enough between the ship and rocks to spread the oars and she was a mean sea. They got the boat away, and boy, what a time they had doing it. She would hit the rocks and then the ship, and they couldn't unhook her. God was with them or they sure couldn't have got clear astern without His help.
 The life-jacket locker was locked and we had to use an axe to open it. The life rafts were frozen and the old axe was used again. Most of the crew had to hang on the side of the well deck all night with toes or any other way they could.
 I was on the bridge all night until about 3:30 when I took a look below and saw that I could still get in the office, so I got out blankets and gave them to Tierney, Gillette and Lewis. I started something then. I had to raid the officers' rooms for the gang, I got my dress blues and put them on under a suit of dungarees.
 The captain and executive officers acted like men, but Sandy,

Gross, Mensinger, Friedlander, and a few more lost their nerve; of course everyone was a little nervous, but you know what I mean.
 About 7:00 a. m. the next morning the old man told Davis that he was going to try to swim to the big rock and not to send anyone over unless he made it. It looked bad for him for a little while, but he made it. A fellow by the name of Moon swam over with a line and we all went over on it. Sweeney and Vasbinder had to be pulled over; the others made it hand over hand. Sandy said to me, "God I will never make it." A big six foot 200 pound negro steward lost his nerve in the middle of the line. Laugh, I never laughed so long before. He hollered, "I jess know they are sending me to a watery grave." The line was in the water all the way between the rocks. The tide was coming in and the sea was getting mean again, so I got a running start and tried to slide as far as possible but the sea dropped about that time and I hit my knee on a small rock and got a mouth full of fuel oil at the same time. I thought "Barney, you have rolled your last bones now." After we got on the large rock our whale boat showed up. Boy, they were all in. We were transferred to the Chaucery in it and went over in a breeches buoy from her to the beach.
 Please excuse the mistakes for I'm all in. Will write you when I have more time.
 If you come back, you're just a rolling stone. Good luck and the best of wishes for a successful career on the U. S. S. Outside.

Traveling In Japan

By S. W. Nichols

When I think of the pleasant days I spent in Tokyo it is hard to realize that so much of it is a heap of ruins. Its many sights and sounds were a never ending attraction. While christianity has made large gains in Japan, still the people are very largely pagan and the Buddhist temples are all important.

One of the first sounds one hears early in the morning, if at all within hearing distance of a temple, will be the drums beginning the morning matins. They made me think of the caustic words of Israel's great prophet when the test was made at Mt. Carmel regarding the true God and the Baal of the king and queen. The altar for each was erected and on the one to the heathen god the sacrifice was first placed and the one which brought fire from heaven to consume the offering was to be the true deity.

The account says the prophets of the false god cried from morning till noon, "Oh, Baal, hear us," but no response. Then came the words of stern old Elijah, "Cry aloud for he is a god; either he is talking or he is pursuing, or he is in a journey or peradventure he sleepeth and must be awaked." But we know it all availed nothing and then came the true evidence of a real God and fire came in answer to Elijah's prayer. So many times I wished the money spent on those heathen temples and sacrifices might have been used for the worship of the true and only God and the welfare of His little ones. As in the time of the Blessed Master they "think they shall be heard for their much speaking" and so they keep on with their drums and add the noise of gongs to the din.

When I was in Grenada, Spain, I was awakened one morning by a sound of drums, tin horns and a babel of discordant noises and looking out of the window I saw a crowd of boys following an aged priest. The little fellows had horns, tin pans and all manner of noise producing articles and when I protested to a resident against the annoyance of the venerable prelate the man replied that it was all right. On a certain day of each week the priest goes to the residences of those unable to attend the Cathedral for confession and takes their acknowledgements at home and the boys go along to arouse the sleepers and announce the coming of the holy man.

The well-to-do are always exclusive and seclusive in their homes and have heavy gates for entrance with walls of stone surrounding their premises and the unbarring of the gates makes a clatter to which one soon becomes familiar and admonishes him, if he be a bit indolent, that it is time to be astir. The servants in Japan are very reliable for they have been reared to do duty and know nothing else and they go from the gates to their duties, grooming horses, mowing grass, cultivating the garden or whatever falls to their lot while in the streets is heard the cry of "Natto, Na-at-to."

This is essentially a poor man's dish and is peddled by men and boys as an early breakfast. It is a preparation of beans which have been kept till they are getting sour but are said to have a rich, tasty flavor and is probably the cheapest food that can be produced as beans will grow anywhere. The pulse on which Daniel and his fellow exiles grew fatter than those who lived on the king's dainties, was probably beans mainly, only doubtless the vegetable was served while yet fresh. Soon the tinkling of tiny bells proclaims the advent of the newboys as each one carries a bell of some sort and peculiar to the vendors of the news. The sellers of milk and bread each have a distinctive cry which tells they are coming. When there is a better bean dish known as tofu, a kind of curd much more desirable than natto and more expensive and is eaten by the middle and higher up classes. With the exception of rice, which each housewife cooks, if able to get it, middle class families in Japan do but little cooking as the itinerant vendors sell their goods cheaper than they can be prepared at home.

Another interesting sight is the mendicant priests who go with bowl in hand from house to house, tinkling a bell and chanting monotonous prayers. Each has his definite beat beyond which he is supposed never to go. Each front door has attached to it a card indicating to which sect the occupants belong and to his especial own the priest goes and is supposed to receive a dole, not very large, but enough to satisfy his few wants. A priest is supposed never to poach on the route of another and they generally live up to the rule.

Then one meets tinkers, clog menders, each with a peculiar cry, and pipe cleaners who have miniature steam engines which give forth a tiny whistle except when at work. Lamp cleaners and menders are often seen selling new lamps, cleaning those in use and looking after the gate illuminations and followed by the oil men who sell the where-with to make the flame.

Toward evening another set of peddlers occupy the streets. They offer hot potatoes and fried fish, both quite appetizing, and do a good trade as the people are wont to have a five o'clock supper when not at menial labor.

An unusually strange sight is to be seen in the middle of the night. There is a belief among some of the natives that good may come to a suffering friend or relative by a vicarious penance so there is a series of temples or shrines of Fuda-Shima, each supplied with a well of cold water. To one of these the devotee goes, removes his clothing and is drenched with cold water. Donning a thin night robe and ringing a bell he hastens to the next shrine and so goes the whole round which is quite extended and the colder the weather the more meritorious the deed. Often it costs the life of the devotee but he feels he has brought relief to a sufferer to whom he is indebted by ties of kindred or affection.

On the highest elevation of Tokyo, commanding a view of the entire city and the bay which on a clear day extends across to the distant hills of the Boshu peninsula, stands the Yasukuni Shrine, better known as the Shokonsha or Shrine of the Righteous souls.

Dedication of the dead is a constant tendency of the Japanese as with the people of China and they claim the occidentals would do the same thing, if they were not so prejudiced. When a great person died he was said to have gone to join the gods and of course the more distinguished the person on earth the more prominent would he be in the other world.

To some extent the people of Europe and America honor their illustrious dead as witness Westminster Abbey in London and the tombs of the popes in the Vatican at Rome while the pantheon is also a sepulcher of the noble departed.

The Kudan shrine stands in the midst of spacious grounds laid out in a truly artistic manner with trees and walks forming a lovely park to which many resort for rest and refreshment. It is approached through an immense torii or arcade of bronze standing on the brow of the hill overlooking the city. Inside this is a broad stone walk lined with handsome lanterns in stone and bronze. The whole making an impressive appearance.

Twice a year, May and December, is held a great Shokonsha festival when to be worshiped are the gods of the souls of all those who fought for Europe during and since the period of the restoration of monarchy. The ceremonies last three days. On each morning there is a religious service. The main worshipers the first day being members of the Imperial Household; the second representatives of the army and navy and on the third all of the people, and especially those who are descendants of the great warriors whose souls are being honored. The worship is conducted by white robed priests, offerings of rice cakes and flour are made and addresses delivered and songs sung. This lasts some two hours and then the program changes.

Following the religious ceremonies the scene changes most emphatically. Wrestlers contend for glory, while there are contests in jiu-jitsu, fencing, running, jumping and many other forms of manly exercise. The contests are indeed interesting. Wrestling is an exercise largely practiced in Japan. I have seen a regular establishment devoted to it where the floor is covered with a cushion several inches thick and where great numbers of contestants may be seen.

One evening I was especially interested as the fun was fast and furious, but I noticed one man, not especially muscular or well built, but of good fair average strength as it seemed, but no one was able to throw him though person after person tried it. He was surely a champion, and I learned later that he was one of the professors, or teachers, and had won his way to the top. It is the supposition among the natives that the spirits of the departed can enjoy these festivities and so they are attended with ardor and enthusiasm.

Nearby is a military museum, containing all manner of wonders, ancient arms and thousands of interesting objects but I will not weary the reader with a list.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Farm Products Exhibit.—One feature of the picnic at Arenzville today under the auspices of the Commercial Club, was an exhibit of corn, potatoes, apples, pears and bakery goods. The farm products were judged by Farm Adviser of Morgan county. Quite a little discussion ensued as a result of placing the utility type of corn over the rough type that has been so commonly known.

State Quarantine Officer.—H. C. Garvey finished his work in Morgan county and reported that farmers and feeders were giving the very best co-operation in regard to quarantined herds. He said we had the best dirt and oiled roads of any county he had visited. He also spoke highly of the up-to-date method used by our farmers. He left Thursday for Greene county.

Culling Demonstration Friday.—These are scheduled for Sam Camms, W. J. Bottom, C. R. Gibbons and Sam Darleys. Any interested party is welcome to attend any or all of these demonstrations.

Mrs. Elsworth Black and Miss Elizabeth Black were in Carrollton yesterday afternoon attending the Greene county fair.

ABUNDANT WHEAT SUPPLY MAKES BREAD ECONOMICAL FOR

Margarine an Excellent Spread for Bread

The housewife who is a wise provider will see to it that her family has plenty of bread. Nutrition experts tell us that from one-fifth to one-third of the calories should be supplied by cereal foods. Three quarters of the cereal consumption in this country is in the form of wheat bread.

Just at present there is an abundant supply of wheat, and bread is cheap. An increase in its use would result in a large saving to the American family and at the same time provide a simple but excellent diet. The selection of a suitable spread or bread needs consideration. For the American taste something is needed with which to spread the bread and make it more palatable from a dietetic standpoint, also bread is not in itself a balanced ration but needs a complement in the form of a nutritious spread composed of an edible fat.

For this purpose margarine is being called to the attention of and used by the American housewife. She wants wheat flour to be white, palatable and nutritious; and she wants the spread to be pure, wholesome and delicious. Jelke GOOD LUCK margarine answers this requirement exactly.

Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine is prepared from pure ingredients. Wholesome food oils rendered from neat fats are blended into a perfect emulsion with milk. This is received fresh and sweet each morning from our farms. Both the ingredients and the method of preparation are delectably pure and sanitary. During the entire process of production Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine never comes in contact with human hands. Bread spread with Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine forms a combination that is delicious and satisfying. Whenever the one is used, the other should also be in the house.—Advertisement.

Watch your baking!

You're apt to have failures this fall unless you buy your flour carefully

The new wheat crop has been a big disappointment. Drought and "rust" just before harvest ruined much of it. According to latest Government and State reports, it is 120,000,000 bushels smaller than last year's crop.

There is a real shortage of the strong gluten hard wheat indispensable for making high grade family flour. Many millers will, of necessity, use inferior wheat, and the inevitable result will be flour that causes a high percentage of baking failures.

Can you always depend on the flour you use?

If you bake with Enterprise, you won't have to worry. It is harder to get the very highest grade of wheat we always insist upon, but we are doing it by exerting greater effort and paying the necessary premium. And we will continue to use only the best part of the kernel in making Enterprise.

You can always depend on Enterprise.

WHITE SOX END SEASON'S GAMES

Beat Tigers 9 to 6—Game Won by Bunched Hits and Daring Base Running

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Chicago brought the American League season to a close here today by defeating Detroit 9 to 6 in the last game of the series. Ted Blankenship had only two bad innings and was backed up by great support, especially by McClellan and Barrett who played at third, because Kamm was suffering from a cold. The locals won the game by bunching their hits with daring base running. Schalk was unable to play because of a strained ligament in his shoulder.

McTigue Stribling Fight Ends In Riot

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 4.—(By the A. P.)—McTigue and Stribling, only two appearing out of this city with his light heavyweight champion crown following his fight with young Stribling, the 18 year old Mecon, Ga., youth who for three hours in the fight had what was believed to have been the official title.

Referee Ertle declared in a private residence away from angry spectators issued a signed statement declaring that he had officially declared the ten round battle a draw and had not reversed his decision even in the face of threats that "unless I awarded the decision to Stribling I would never leave the arena alive."

McTigue and his manager, Joe Jacobs, left town immediately after Ertle issued his official statement. McTigue issued a statement declaring that he had been forced into the fight with a broken thumb at the point of pistols and Joe Jacobs stated that spectators threatened to hang him to a tree holding him responsible for the fight being declared off officially earlier during the day.

Ertle asserted that fight promoters had forced him to grab the right arm of the challenger and raise it aloft naming Major John Paul Jones, heading the committee of the American Legion staging the fight as the man who grabbed him and Stribling's hands and raised them aloft.

Ertle still was in town at a late hour tonight and declared he was in no hurry to take his departure. He said that he would go direct to New York and file his official statement with the New York boxing commission.

Two hours before the fight when a crowd was holding sway in the downtown district Ertle declared Major Jones came to his room in a local hotel and said that "he (McTigue) Jacobs and myself, as long as I was in town, were being watched, that every railroad station was covered. I asked him what was the idea and he gave me no answer."

"When I put both of my arms out," Ertle's statement continues, "pointing to both corners to signify a draw, Jones was the first man to come to me and demanded that I give the decision to Stribling, and I told him that my decision was given. Then he said to me that I'd better get back in there and give that decision to Stribling and I said my decision was given and I could only give it a draw, that if he wanted to give the decision to Stribling he could. Then he said 'what do you call a draw; don't you have to raise both arms?' and I said that you don't have to raise them. Then I stepped back into the ring and pointed to both corners and said 'a draw.'"

From the press seats it was plainly audible that an argument was going on inside the crowded ring. The crowd outside the ring continued to push forward fighting frantically to climb between the ropes. In the rush for Ertle a squad of police rescued McTigue and escorted him from the ring. Stribling remained in his corner. A shout went up that Ertle wanted all of the newspapermen to come into the ring. Many were unable to do so because of the crowd. Those who entered the ring said they believed Major Jones was acting as Ertle's spokesman. They were asked their opinion of the fight and they awarded the decision to the challenger claiming that he had won eight out of the ten rounds.

The newspapermen retired and were climbing back into the press stand when they saw the arms of Stribling and Ertle flash above the heads of the persons in the ring. The official announcer yelled that the decision had been awarded to the challenger. Ertle immediately left the ring escorted by the police. Newspapermen found it impossible to reach him to check up on the reversed decision.

The champion early this morning had secured a statement from four physicians that he was in pain from an imperfectly healed fracture of a bone in his left hand. At his request the fight was declared off by the promoters. He issued a statement tonight before taking his almost fleeing departure from Columbus saying:

"I was really surprised this morning when they forced me to go into the ring with only one hand to defend my title. I have never known before of a champion being forced to enter the ring with one hand at the point of a gun. The gun was displayed in a hotel, but not actually pointed at me."

"I was told by a committee of eight doctors," he continued, "that my hand was broken, that I couldn't go thru with the fight. Some banker of Columbus told me my life wasn't worth two cents; to take that statement any way I wanted; if I didn't go into the ring I would know what that would mean. So I finally decided to go into the ring and asked if there was any way of fixing my hand and they said only by the use of cocaine, which was used. Instead of helping me, it hurt me. It made me sick all during the fight. I went into the ring with one hand and I believe I scored more points with that one hand than Stribling did with both of his."

Miss Blanche Harney was among the Franklin teachers who attended the institute here Thursday.

NEW GRID COACHES DEAL THEIR CARDS ON WESTERN FIELDS

Fans will watch with interest the work of prominent football eleven that start the season under new coaches this year.

Pennsylvania starts the year under the tutelage of Louis Young, a former Penn star. Young replaced Johnny Heisman, the former coach of Georgia Tech. Heisman was not the success at Penn that his followers anticipated. Penn hasn't been a dominant factor in football for several seasons. It will be interesting to see how the team fares with Young in charge.

Percy Haughton, as everybody knows, has returned to the coaching business, taking over the Columbia team, another team that has fared badly in recent years. Jesse Hawley, who was head coach at Iowa a number of years ago, has assumed charge of Dartmouth football. West Point is being drilled this year by Captain J. L. McEwen, former Army star, and an all-American selection in 1914. The captain succeeds Major Charley Daly.

I. S. D. TIGERS TO MEET PALMYRA HIGH

Game Will Be Called Saturday on Illini Field—Champaign High School Coming October 13.

The Illini Tigers of the School for the deaf will meet the Palmyra High School on Illini field Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The teamwork of the Tigers is improving but they need a great deal of drilling in forward passes according to Coach Robby Burns. Some slight changes have been made in the lineup, among others being the shift of Rose from left half to right half. Clark, Schrader, and Sellers are all making strong bids for the left half position.

The Jacksonville High School and the Tigers hereafter will take scrimmages together every Tuesday and Wednesday in order to assist both teams in polishing up for future games.

It is now positively announced that the Champaign High School will meet the Tigers on Illini field on October 13th. Last year when the game was held at Champaign our boys were defeated by a score of 36 to 0; but this is nothing to the discredit of the Tigers, inasmuch as the Champaign school has an enrollment of 2,000 pupils while the School for the Deaf has only about 50 boys above the age of 16 years from which to form a team. The request for the game came from the boys of the Champaign team, Coach Moyer of that school phoning here for the date. He stated that his boys were very anxious to again meet the deaf boys, no matter if the visitors are considered the leading high school team of the state, on account of the impression left at Champaign last year by the Tigers for their clean, sportsmanship attitude.

The proposition was at first declined on account of financial reasons, but the local boys felt that it was their duty to entertain these visitors on account of the royal treatment received while visiting with them last year. Although the local players realize that they are up against a hard proposition, they have all agreed to work hard to make the best showing possible in the game. If weather permits the Champaign team will come to Jacksonville in autos, so now that all arrangements are made for bringing a real top-notch eleven here, it is up to the friends of the Tigers and in fact all fans in the city to turn out and witness the tussle and in this way assist the deaf boys in being able to furnish the visitors the proper kind of entertainment.

FACTS

According to records in the Secretary of State's office, Studebaker outsold all other makes of cars in the first six months of 1923 in Wayne County, Michigan (of which Detroit is the county seat) with the exception of Ford and Chevrolet.

Detroit knows motor cars and motor car values, because the majority of the population is engaged directly or indirectly in some phase of the motor car industry.

Detroit knows Studebaker because of the large production of Studebaker cars in that city, and Detroit is partial to Studebaker cars for just one reason—the merit of the product.

RICH MAN'S LAW IS NO LONGER A FACT

Illinois Plan of Legal Aid Under Direction of State Bar Association Doing Good Work.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., (AP)—The poor man who found that the "fine lot" he had purchased was at the bottom of Lake Michigan, the widow who bought a strip of "blue sky", the wife whose husband deserted her with four children, these were among the many who brought their troubles to the free legal aid bureau in Illinois the past year, finding the law a friend of the poor as well as the rich, according to the Illinois Bar association.

The "rich man's law" is no longer a charge that can be laid against the system of jurisprudence in Illinois, in the opinion of R. Allen Stephens, secretary of the state bar association. With the development of what is known as the "Illinois plan" of legal aid work, Mr. Stephens declares, "the bar in this state may no longer be charged with neglecting the interests of poor litigants."

This Illinois system was given special mention in a report of the committee in legal aid work of the American Bar association presented at the annual meeting of the association in Minneapolis last August, and a special contract, which officials of the state bar association have devised for governing free legal aid work in this state, has been used as a model by the Carnegie foundation.

Thousands Aided.

Thousands of oppressed persons in this state, the prey of ignorance or neglect on their own part, and of the shrewdness and cunning of heartless money grabbers on the other, have found succor through the legal aid made possible by this little contract.

In practically every city in the state outside of Chicago the legal aid work is done in the following manner: A list of attorneys available for this work is compiled by the local bar association, after consultation with the attorneys. It is revised every year. When a case requiring legal advice or court trial is presented to a social service organization, the secretary of such organization writes out an order directed to one of the attorneys on the legal aid list, just as orders for groceries are given to the poor. The attorneys are selected from the list in rotation. The order blanks are supplied by the bar association. This order, simple and brief in comparison with the usual legal document, is as follows:

How Operated

"This will serve to introduce the bearer (name of poor persons) who desires the services of an attorney, and you are requested to take care of his case in accordance with the agreement made between the Associated Charities of Illinois and the Illinois Bar Association. It is understood that there is to be no fee charged for services rendered in this behalf."

In Chicago, where legal aid work is said to be developed in advance of other cities, there is a nongovernmental Legal Aid Bureau. A special committee of the Illinois Bar association sits with the board of directors of this bureau.

A poor person, who has been wronged, may go to one of the numerous charity organizations and request the services of a lawyer. The society thus appealed to investigates the needs of the applicant and if it is found he is unable to pay a lawyer's fee, he will have his rights adjusted free of charge.

This work has advanced by leaps and bounds, according to the state bar association. The state bar associations have taken it up vigorously, until now over 30 associations have taken definite action, and the lawyers in general have accepted the work as one of the responsibilities of the profession.

AMERICA EXCELS IN AIRCRAFT USES

Used to Excellent Advantage in Watching For Forest Fires and Over Crops.

New York (AP)—"While other nations are developing air power as a destructive weapon the United States, following its traditional non-military policy, is putting aircraft to work," reads a report made public by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

"The Forest Service is utilizing planes in timber patrol in Oregon and California. The Coast Guard has aviators in its employ. The Coast and Geodetic Survey is remapping sections of coastline from the air. The Smithsonian Institution has found that aerial scientific studies of fisheries can be made admirably. The air mail of the Post Office Department has operated with increasing efficiency for the last three and one-half years and only recently began night flying experiments which will reduce the time of the transcontinental trip to 30 hours or less. In all of these activities aircraft figure solely as a vehicle performing constructive service of economic benefit to the nation."

made over gypsy-moth infested orchards and forests in New Hampshire.

"Of even greater significance is the aviation work carried on by B. K. Coad, in charge of the delta laboratory at Tallulah, La. The south loses millions of dollars through the damage wrought to the cotton crops by the boll weevil and other pests. Trials have been going on for more than a year and are proving very satisfactory."

RED CROSS BOARD TO MEET FRIDAY

There will be a meeting of the executive board of the Morgan county chapter Red Cross on Friday evening, October 5.

This is a very important meeting, as the secretary will present the annual report at that time and the budget for the coming year will be discussed.
